LAYING UP TREASURE IN HEAVEN

Jesus tells of a man who had more resources than he had sense. He was blessed beyond measure, but instead of thinking about how to share his resources he only thought about how to save them. The Lord called him a fool for the man would soon die and lose opportunities to invest in eternity.

Why did Jesus tell that story, and why did the Holy Spirit inspire Luke to record it? (Lk 12:13–21). It's not just a lesson about missed opportunities to make a difference; it's a warning about the danger of losing focus in this life. When we take our eyes off the Giver of every good gift, it's easy to lose our way.

Jesus offers wise counsel for those who desire to stay focused on that which is eternally important: "Seek first the kingdom of God, and His righteousness" (Matt 6:33). He warns: "Do not lay up for yourselves treasures on earth, where moth and rust destroy and where thieves break in and steal; but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven . . . for where your treasure is, there your heart will be also" (Matt 6:19–21).

Some years ago, a retired teacher handed me a check for US$10,000. I was stunned. She wanted the money to be used to tell people about Jesus, His love, and His soon return. She explained that all of her needs were met and she had adequate resources to care for her future. "I was waiting for an opportunity to make a difference," she said. In the years after her generous donation, she was totally engaged in the ministries of her church family. Why? Was she trying to micro-manage her gift? No, she had laid up treasure in heaven, and her heart was there also.

There are many ways we can lay up treasure in heaven. When Darren offered to produce the Hope Sabbath School iOS app for just five hundred dollars by donating most of his time, He was laying up treasure in heaven. When Ron and Shirley in Florida donated US$500 for us to hire Darren, they saw an opportunity to invest in eternity. As a result of the Holy Spirit working through Darren, Ron, and Shirley, today the Hope Sabbath School app for Apple devices is used in more than 130 countries, and thousands are hearing the truth about Jesus and coming to a saving knowledge of Him. "That's the best investment we've ever made," says Ron.

Soon we were receiving requests from Hope Sabbath School members around the world for an Android app. Our first estimate was $10,000. After several months in prayer, a team of young software engineers offered to develop the Android app. "Could you afford five hundred dollars?" they asked. They too were laying up treasure in heaven. When Ron and Shirley heard about this wonderful opportunity they said, "We'll sponsor that app too!" At last report, Hope Sabbath School members in 137 countries are using the Android app.

Here are just a few notes we have received recently:

Danny is a professor at the University of Witwatersrand in South Africa: I have the Hope Sabbath School app on my phone. I have a very busy schedule but Hope Channel has helped me listen to the Sabbath School study while doing experiments in the lab or moving from one lecture room to another.

Gee listens to our programs in the Solomon Islands. She posted this on our Facebook page where we now have more than 160,000 followers: I am so blessed by listening on the app. May God continue to bless you and the team.

Elkana writes from Kenya: My family tunes in to Hope Sabbath School every night and we are really blessed. I have downloaded the app on my tablet and watch it any time. Know that we continue to pray for you and always look forward to a new episode.

Ridge lives on the small Caribbean Island of Barbuda, and was recently baptized: I started going to church again and taking Christianity more seriously. Hope Sabbath School plays a very important role in my daily study of the Word. I recently downloaded the app on my tablet. I am eternally grateful.

Messages like these encourage us to press on, sharing the good news about Jesus with people around the world. Thanks for partnering with us in this life-changing mission. May you be blessed as you lay up treasure in heaven.

What Viewers are Saying

When I found out that my gym has DirecTV, I began changing the channel to 368—to Hope Channel. Sometimes I find it still playing long after my workout. I am praying this plants seeds in the hearts of those who watch.

—Linda

I have watched other Christian channels but I am drawn to your programing. It's so clean and refreshing. Pure is the word that leaps out. It's all about Jesus and not self-glory. This channel has been a blessing to me in so many ways.

—Donna

I get up early every morning to start my day with the Hope Channel. I feel more positive & calmer. My time is well spent and wholesome things are being put into my brain. I have also been treated very courteously when I have made inquiries.

—Dianna

It's been many years since I've been to church. But when I recently found Hope Channel, a desire to belong to a church family has started to grow in me. I'm looking for a church that reflects what I watch and learn on Hope Channel.

—Joshua

I love the free resources on your store (hopechannelstore.com). I also go there to buy gifts for family and friends.

—Julio

I watched Hope Channel for the first time in a hotel room during one of the longest, saddest days of my life. I've been watching it ever since and have shared it with many others in my life.

—Samuel

DREAMS VISIONS<sup>AND</sup> HOPE

Twice, the Lord prepared the way through dreams and visions to village elders high above the coastal city of Palu in Central Sulawesi, Indonesia. One dreamed that God's true religion would come to the mountain, and the day of worship—the day between the sixth and first day of the week—would be a defining factor. The other had a vision of a man, along with a white bird called “Tonji,” who would give her village the truth about salvation and hope for the future. Both the dream and the vision (mostly) came true more than 40 years ago when men with the gospel message and seventh-day Sabbath truth reached the top of the mountain. But Tonji the white bird was never seen. That is, until just recently! But first, the story as it began some 40 years ago.

Steep, muddy paths in dense jungle crags make the trek dangerous to Wawujai and Sadakanjai, villages near Palu, which sits at the mouth of a mountain river. And in the 1970s, travel meant days of hiking up slippery slopes to reach the isolated mountain villages of the “tree dwellers” who spoke Da’a, a local dialect.

Brave men brought the message of hope, the message of Jesus, to the villagers, after an initial survey of the area in March 1975.* Pastor F. P. Langingi, a former Muslim who became a pastor wondered about the people who lived in the mountain jungle high above Palu. He took Lukas Dasingan, a student at that time, with him. They traveled up the mountain and found villagers who had been visited by another Christian group for 50 years, but still knew nothing of the Bible, and still practiced spirit worship. These people, who live in houses on stilts, were known as tree dwellers because of their treetop homes built atop 45-foot poles and perched high above the jungle floor.

After meeting with some of the people, Dasingan, without hesitation, said he'd work among the mountain people. He used a picture roll and learned the Da'a dialect during his first three months there. The first village he worked in was Wawujai, where a village elder named Ranteuwa dreamed 25 years before of the seventh-day Sabbath. Some of the older villagers clearly remembered Ranteuwa's dream; they accepted Dasingan and the stories he told about Jesus. About seven months later, 130 tree dwellers were baptized and a brand new chapel constructed of lumber, zinc roofing, and cement was built.

The young pastor didn't stop with Wawujai. In 1977, after meeting a group of small-statured people who'd come down to Palu specifically to tell Dasingan that their madam elder had received a vision that they would meet him, Dasingan and a few others climbed higher up the mountain on a four-day trek, often through heavy fog and soaking rains, bearing scars from leeches and briars, to reach the remote village of Sadakanjai. In a region a bit farther up the trail, Dasingan was greeted by young villagers and dragged to meet their elders. When he arrived, the madam elder confirmed that this was the man she had seen in her vision, who along with a white bird called Tonji would tell them the truth about salvation. He would give them hope, and tell them about the future. Sitting around the split-bamboo floor of a jungle hut, eating rice and bananas, the madam elder asked all of them to listen to Dasingan as he preached. Many Da'a people accepted Jesus as their Savior, including the elder. “But where is Tonji?” she wondered for her vision had very clearly included a white bird. She and the villagers didn't linger on this detail—they knew that God had sent Dasingan, and they eagerly learned about Jesus and the Bible.

Today, the growing communities and active churches high above Palu don't seem as remote. Some villages have grown into cities, and there are some modern conveniences such as plumbing and electricity.

Incredibly, in these remote regions are congregations who worship in mountain churches and chapels. Of the approximately 8,500 Da'a people who live in the lush mountain area, 2,500 of them are Seventh-Day Adventist Christians. These church members are scattered throughout more than 30 congregations, served by two pastors assisted by two young, assistant pastors.

The devoted Christians who call this verdant mountain jungle their home are deeply rooted in their faith, having long given up their superstitions and spirit worship. But they still remember madam elder's vision from decades ago, and when Hope Channel recently did a video shoot with a white drone camera in five villages, many people gathered to watch the drone fly high above in the skies. In astonishment, they shouted, “Here is the white bird, this is the Tonji we've been waiting for!”

How Lita Found Her Church

In 2008, Lita Romero was desperate. She felt sick and went to many different doctors, but they could not find the cause of her illness. She didn't know how to pray. Yet on her way to yet another doctor's appointment, she cried out to God. Church seemed like something she should try, so Lita started going to church every Sunday. She soon added attendance during the week.

"I was going to church every day and trying to talk to people there about God. I even prayed that God would send someone to teach me how to correctly do all the rituals I saw happening in the church," says Lita. But something didn't seem right. "I asked God for help, I told Him I needed more. Then I began to look for another church."

During this time of turmoil Lita felt a sudden and deep conviction to confess her sins while driving from her home in Algodones, New Mexico, to Albuquerque. Tears poured down her face as she stubbornly tried to stop the feeling. After initially asking God for help, she now, in her dismay, wanted Him to leave her alone. But upon arrival at her destination, Lita abruptly realized her turn of thought and, aghast at saying "no" to God, she prayed: "I'm sorry! Please forgive me!"

Lita began reading the Bible. She found it hard to understand but knew God was calling her to spend time with Him. Her physical problems had improved and she was in better health, but spiritually, there was a deficiency in her life, something was missing.

She kept looking for preachers on television. One of her favorites was Joel Olsteen. She enjoyed listening to him every day, but still felt she should search for something else. Then one day she found Hope Channel. The first program she watched was Daily Hope.

"I enjoyed watching the program because it sounded

Lita is excited about her growing relationship with Jesus and is enjoying the fellowship of her new church community.

One of the ways Lita shares her faith with others is by telling them about Hope Channel. If you'd like a free stack of Hope Channel cards to use to share your faith, order them here: hopetv.org/cards (note: the cards are free, but shipping costs are not).

like they were teaching the truth and it made sense to me,” says Lita. She continued watching but wasn’t able to write down the Bible verses fast enough. Then in 2012, she says, “God blessed me with a new home. I got DirecTV and a DVR and began recording Hope Channel programs. This allowed me to record the shows, watch, and pause them so I could look up the Scriptures at my own pace.”

One day while Lita was cleaning her house, Let’s Pray was being broadcast. She wasn’t paying much attention to it, but all of a sudden had the impression that she should stop what she was doing and watch. Lita explains, “As I was watching, the host gave a phone number and said to call if we needed prayer or wanted a free book. I asked for the book they were giving away.” Lita also asked for the address of a church near her. The operator gave her the address of the Rio Rancho Seventh-day Adventist Church.

“On April 6, 2013, I drove up to the church and parked in their lot,” says Lita. “I immediately felt like this was my church.” She went in, sat down, and was soon greeted by church member Monica Dawson. Monica offered to study the Bible with Lita, who promptly and happily agreed. Their friendship grew and Lita shares that “Monica has been a great blessing in my life! She has been there, not only to study the Word of God with me, but also to help and pray with me through some difficult times.”

But Lita still had some difficult situations to navigate through. As she studied with Monica, an old friend, Sidney, unexpectedly came back into Lita’s life after 25 years. Sidney had some very strong convictions about her faith that now seemed to conflict with Lita’s new belief. Together they studied the Bible, but the more they studied, the more questions arose—and Lita became confused. So Lita began praying for God to continue leading her in the right way. If the good feeling she had when she started attending the Adventist church and making friends there was just a feeling and nothing more, she asked God to point her in another direction, to another church.

The turning point came when one day Sidney said to Lita, “You know there is a narrow road we have to follow.”

Lita agreed, and searched her heart for what could be her “narrow road.” Was there something about her new beliefs and lifestyle that she wouldn’t give up for anything? What was it that made life meaningful for her? It didn’t take much searching. Lita knew what it was. She told Sidney that the Sabbath was her narrow road, the one thing that she could not be without. Lita left Sidney’s house that day with a sense of purpose and clarity.

“I thanked God that now I finally knew for sure the right church for me,” explains Lita. On April 19, 2014, Lita gave her life to Christ in baptism. She says, “I praise God for Hope Channel, and for the ways He led me to the truth!” 🙏

International News

A visit with Hope Channel Japan's technical team

Japan. Media professionals from churches in the Tokyo area came together to train the Hope Channel Japan staff, resulting in the launch of two internet channels—one that streams church services to small congregations and to elderly, housebound viewers and the other that broadcasts short engaging clips on social media as a first step in reaching the public. Health programs, Bible studies, and other shows will soon be available as video-on-demand. They are also making plans to renovate and update their studio facility. 🇯🇵

Korea, Taiwan, and Hong Kong. The teams here are small with just a handful of employees. Yet the population we need to reach here are huge. In the early stages of development, the teams here are just getting themselves organized. Hope Channel Korea, for example, is developing short vignettes that target secular students. 🇰🇷

Kandus Thorp with Pastor Johnson at Spicer Memorial College, Pune, India

India. A small Hope Channel India studio is being set up on the campus of Spicer Memorial College to not only create more production space but to also tap into the rich talent and desire for media evangelism among the staff and students who will be playing an active role in producing new shows. 🇮🇳

Geoffrey Mbwana preaching

Kenya. For ten nights Pastor Geoffrey Mbwana preached to thousands gathered in churches across Kenya—all connected to one another by satellite. In Uasin Gishu three elders in a local church invited everyone in their village to the meetings. Fifty-four of the guests have asked for Bible studies to prepare them for baptism. During the meetings Mbwana emphasized the mission and message of Hope Channel, resulting in US$7,000 in donations towards new production at Hope Channel Kenya. 🇰🇪

Project Hope Fiji

Enjoy the beautiful photographs taken by Joe of the Fiji islands: hopetv.org/fiji

by Joe Sloan, Director of TV Network Distribution

One of the 410 shows being produced.

When Hope Channel began in 2003, our mission was very clear: to spread the gospel message to the entire world through the use of television. But how we were going to accomplish this mission was not quite as clear. How would one channel producing shows in the United States reach a multitude of cultures and language groups in a cost-effective way that makes a huge impact?

Prayers for godly wisdom were answered with a formidable plan. God showed us that the only way to effectively reach the unreached was for Hope Channel to broadcast directly to the myriad of the world's people groups by producing programs locally in the local language by people of the local culture. With that plan, we understood why Hope Channel could not to be a single channel broadcasting from a single place—we needed to be a network of many channels, each focusing on the needs unique to the people and culture it serves.

Faithful to His plan, God has grown Hope Channel from one English channel to a network of 43 regional channels, reaching millions across the globe with the gospel message of God's love and salvation. For many of our viewers, if it were not for stumbling upon a Hope Channel broadcast they may never have heard about Jesus. Local churches in areas served by a local Hope Channel broadcast report seeing more and more strangers come through their doors for the first time because of what they've come to learn about God and Christian living on Hope Channel.

But creating so many networks has been a strain, not only financially, but also in terms of personnel. Finding professionals in the television industry is often difficult in many of our regions. While we never have a shortage of passionate, driven people ready to work in media ministry, we realized Hope Channel would have to go to each region to help set up and train workers to create effective Spirit-filled shows. And that is how "Project Hope" began—it was an initiative to train television professionals for every new channel that joins the network, but requires assistance in building a television production team.

The latest Project Hope took place in Fiji to create programs specifically for viewers in the South Pacific region. Over 28 days, about 70 television professionals from 10 countries camped at Suvavou, Fiji to train a brand new team at Hope Channel Fiji and help them produce a fresh new inventory of over 400 programs relevant to their needs and culture, and in their own local languages. At the rate of almost 15 half-hour shows per day, it was both an exhausting and fulfilling experience. Ultimately the project would grow to include health programming produced in cooperation with the Fiji Ministry of Health, and a personal visit by the Fiji President George Konrote who enthusiastically participated in handing out participation certificates to every participant, and even being a guest in one series of health programs.

I was there, and I was in awe of what I saw. I witnessed the incredible commitment of a team focused on increasing their talents to reach the people of their own islands. During our time together we developed a strong bond that broke cultural and language barriers because of a shared mission to explore creative ways to share the gospel message and the love of Jesus. It is a bond that had grown men hugging and tearing up over goodbyes. While the days were long, and the schedule demanding, a spirit of harmony and peace prevailed throughout—a sort of "upper-room" experience where all were in one accord to the common cause of serving Christ. 🙏

Inside Hope Channel

Production Luci Sloan

I'm a production assistant at Hope Channel. I love the variety that my job brings me every day. No two days are ever alike: One day may find me hiring a crew and coordinating their travel plans while the next day has me shopping for makeup. I especially enjoy the hands-on involvement I have in productions when I run the teleprompter or decorate a set.

I am so blessed to be part of a ministry that helps people find a personal, intimate, one-on-one relationship with Jesus. There is no job satisfaction greater than what I feel when viewers tell us about the joy and peace they have through the Christian lifestyle they now practice because of what they've learned on Hope Channel.

Outside of her commitment to Hope Channel, Luci is an elder in her church. There too she prays for opportunities to come her way: Noticing a group of adults lingering in the hallways instead of participating in one of the many Bible study groups, she began conversations with them to assess their needs and interests. She soon discovered that many wanted a non-traditional Bible study group where the focus is on books—something like a book club at church. So she began with a group of five. Together they read books that eventually led to personal spiritual needs which eventually led into Bible studies that complemented the books being read. Today there are about 30 people in Luci's study group!

Besides her responsibilities at Hope Channel and at her church, Luci enjoys mentoring young people and accompanying them on mission trips. She says she "has a burden for youth, especially in today's crazy world." Her most recent trips were to the Amazon and Zambia where she had the best photo op she's ever had.

Both in my professional and personal life I am a prayer warrior. I believe that when we pray without ceasing miraculous transformations happen in life. I also believe that from ceaseless praying comes great opportunities. I see this illustrated in the way new shows are produced at Hope Channel. Right from the idea of a show to the planning, to the production, and finally the broadcast, there is a lot of praying involved. Hope Channel is on my personal prayer list every day. What we broadcast is not just a series of shows that teach or entertain. They offer opportunities for viewers to make connections with other believers and with God. Hope Channel meets people where they are in life . . . and from there we grow together in Christ.

Every day we hear from viewers who have experienced a miraculous transformation in their lives—and I am grateful to have had a small, Spirit-led part to play in that miracle.

Help Hope. Help Yourself.

Like many, you have probably been watching in dismay as your investments fluctuate wildly and your bank CD rates plummet to less than 1%. There isn't much security in knowing that your financial future can be tossed around by every market whim.

The good news is that with a charitable gift annuity, you can receive a generous fixed income with payments made to you or your loved ones for life. Not only will you help Hope Channel further the gospel broadcast but you will also receive fixed income for your lifetime.

Now is the time to lock in a generous payout rate based on your age.
